HR Experts On Demand Re-launches Website in Celebration of Its Fourth Anniversary

HR Experts On Demand, an Upstate-based firm that delivers practical and customized human resources support and services to small business and nonprofit organizations, recently re-launched its HRExpertsOnDemand.com Web site in celebration of its fourth anniversary.

To provide additional support to small business and nonprofit communities, the new Web site was enhanced to include the latest news and trends in Human Resources, frequently used forms and publications, HR tools and tips, a professional relationships listing, and a directory of useful Web sites. In addition, the home page of the site now features a free sign-up for an electronic newsletter, HR News You Can Use, which provides monthly information on relevant, timely HR issues in an easy-to-read format.

“We invested in enhancing the content of our Web site because we felt it was important to continue to assist small business and nonprofit organizations navigate the choppy waters of HR legal compliance as well as increase employee productivity and engagement,” Vales says. “In addition, the electronic newsletter will help keep organizations abreast of increasing regulatory and enforcement activities of the federal government and will provide other information to increase employee productivity and engagement.”
